alarm of fire at 11 o'clock last night called the department to a small frame stable in the rear of Nelson's residence, High street, adjoining Febl. Johnston & Co's. Carriage factory. The stable was used to store rags, and Chief Simpson declares the fire a case of spontaneous combustion. As early as nine o'clock parties living in the n ighborhood noticed the odor of burning cloth but could not locate it. The fire was extinguished promptly, with loss only of the roof, a presty servere charring of the walls, and total destruction of contents.

The Late Commencement at Antioch General Keifer, President Long, etc. We have received the following communication from a competent source:

To the Editor of the Clobe-Republic Several statements made by your correspondent in the report of Autioch College commencement exercises, published in the Group Rescaric of Saturday evening, June 20, seem to require further notice. Your espondent, speaking of Gen. J. Warren Keiter's participation in the exercises at the unveiling of the memorial tablet, says: "He size read a most touching letter from a lady in numile life who intimately knew Mariou A. Ross, who was captured while doing the duties of a soldier and hanged as a spy."

Precisely what General Reifer or your corespondent meant by the expression "a lady numble life" is difficult to determine. Its expeliention in this case will be apparent o all who know the lady, when they are informed that she is Mrs. Edward Harrison, of Lagonda View Farm, near this city. The riends of Mrs. Harrison teel that she is the eer of any lady in the county. She is a valued literary contributor to numerous pubications, and everything she writes is char acterized by high taste and vigorous expression. Mrs. Harrison is not only a lady of tine mental qualifications, but her surroundngs and situation in life are far from being straightened or interior, as would be understood from the phrase used in the communication noticed. She was certainly quite as well born and as well bred as those who presumed to use the patronicing phrase re-ierred to. In the estimation of those who know and esteem her, the so-called "lady in amble life," Mrs. Harrison, occupies a posiemanly quality, which is as eminent as at of the beautiful Lagonda View Farm shich is her home, and which occupies the p-most point in a landscape of great atmetiveness and agricultural richness

Another error in the communication is the statement of your correspondent that Presicent Long was elected President of the insti-tution for lite. If Antioch College is meant by the word "institution." we desire to say. without reflection on President Long, that he was not elected President of that institution or life. At least one of the most prominent was merely elected President of the Board understood to be a life membership,

During the first four maings the game was close enough to be exciting; but at that time the Springfields settled down more steady work, and the visitors at the same time locsened their grip. leaving the rest of the game entirely one sided. All the way through the game lacked that close watchfulness and thoroughly trained care that one expects from a good professional game. As the store shows the number of errors on each side was altogether too many, and there was scarcely one that was not costly. The Columbus boys showed up better at the bat, getting 10 base, bits against by the Springfields; but they were downed by the superior fielding of the home team, Torrey did their best batting, getting a two base hit, and a magnificent three bagger, sending the ball clear out to the north fence. West also sent the sphere to very nearly the same place and made his third base on it by a scratch. Probably the most brilliant play of the game, or at any rate the most heartily applauded one, was Ardner's throw to the home plate while Torrey

Foung Man Crushed to Puip by a Little

A terrible accident occurred at South Charleston yesterday atternoon in the killing of William D. Robbins by the west bound passenger train on the little Miami railway, passing through that place shortly after o'clock. Robbins was a young man, un married and about twenty-one years old. H family live at Lundon, where he is employed at the Pfeiffer House as a runner. Yester lay morning he and a companion name O'Brien went to South Charleston to a day's pleasure, and it is supposed that Robbins became more or less intoxicaled before the accident occurred. At any rate, before the train came, he was lying slone with his right leg across the track, a few near the O. S. crossing. The engineer say the sun was spining in his tace so that h did not see Robbins until he had gotten or close upon him that it was too late to stop the train, as it was going at a very rapid fate He whistled loudly and reversed his envine all to no purpose, for in another minu-Robbins' body was a crushed and mangled mass of bloody flesh and bones and clothing. The front wheels of the engine struck his right foot swinging the body around on the track so that the whole train went over his breast and loins. He probably never knew what burt him, as there was not the alightest sign of life the next moment after the train had done its bloody work The remains were gathered together and sent to London by the next train, at 6 o'clock.

The lecture room of the First Lutheran church, last evening, was comfortably crowded by the friends of Rev. L. L. Uhland wife, who are making their first visit to America after a twelve years' stay at Guntoor in the Krishua District of India. After gradnating at Wittenburg, Mr. Uhl was married to Miss Barr, sister of John S. Barr, and the young couple departed on a bridal tour to that distant point, the field of the groom's missionary and educational labors. There, ten years ago, a daughter was born to them, who for the first time sets foot on her own and. The lecture room was handsomely decked out with flowers, and over the desk a streamer inscribed, in large letters, "Welcome Home." After the general and repeated hand-shaking, the choir sang the anthem, followed by prayer offered by Rev. Harlan K. Fenner, of Louisville, Ky., a classmate of Mr. Uhl's at Wittenberg. On behalf of the Missionary Society and the church, the Rev. Mr. Smith, the pastor, welcomed the guests of the evening. In his remarks, Mr. Smith said that he could not express appropriately the pleasure he felt in welcoming him back, for he was one of their own, and that twelve years implied a great many dangers and perils. He welcomed him because he was from the distant outpost of the church, and because he was the representative of the faith, love and energy of the church, and because in the discharge of his duty he had undergone dangers and privations that did not fall to the ordinary lot of the body of the church. He welcomed him as a friend, and because of his representing the educational work of the church, and in renewing again their acquaintance wished Brother Uhl, his helpmate and their daughter a pleasant visit among us. For the College and Alumnis, Mr. Shaffer welcomed back one of the "preachers' class' :welve members of Mr. Uhl's class entered the ministry) in whose whole work in India he saw the influence of Wittenberg. He spoke of the good that had been accomplished for education and Christianity by a work written by Mr. Uhl in reply to the Theosophists of India. That his success in his field had waited back an influence to Alma Mater for good, in inspiring the professors and students with renewed interest in college and mission- kill the mularial noteons as fact as you in ary work. Mr. Uhl responded that he was more than happy to see in the interest manifested in the missionary cause, as shown in the prayers, the singing and the welcome, and that he had been greatly encouraged in the success of the mission, and dwelt upon the good effects that had followed kin iness and love upon the people of that far off land. He was proud to address here, in the persons of the ladies of the church, the head and front of the Foreign Mission cause, the mission work of the Lutheran Church of the General Synod of the United States, and hoped they would be encouraged to continue the good work. In reply to Mr. Shaffer he referred to the deep pleasure that he had in coming back to his old Alma Mater. He illustrated the interest he felt in the College by saying that be met a young man in the cars who told him he was a college student, and felt sorry for that young man because the college was not Wittenberg. After a solo, magnificently rendered by Miss Vose, refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening, delightfully to be membered by all participants, was spent in informal gratulation of the guests. In conclusion the choir sang "All Hail the Power of Jesus name."

Mr. and Mrs. Uhl go west for a month o two on a visit to relatives, and on his return on his way back to his field of labor, will remain over a short time and, no doubt, speak to us of his great work.
